

TOPICS FOR ASTRONOMY PRESENTATIONS:

Beyond the Visible Horizon

❑ Computerized Multimedia with live narration that shifts the audience from the apparent visible horizon of our planet, Earth to what is now understood about our Universe in various wavelengths, and through space exploration.

An Oasis In The Cosmic Desert

❑ Computerized Multimedia with live narration that shifts the audience from the Oasis of Life, the Earth to the known barren vast expanse of extremes in temperatures, in pressures, in densities, in velocities, even in emptiness.

Earth To Eternity

❑ Computerized Multimedia with live narration that shifts the audience from the now to yore and yonder, shifting gears in time, and thus also traveling backwards in time as we lookout further and farther in space, inside a younger and younger Universe.

Candles In Vacuum

❑ Computerized Multimedia with live narration that shifts the audience from the placid observed universe to the catastrophic dynamism inside the stars, that cook matter that makeths us all ... will these candles extinguish at all? When and how will it affect us?

Yardsticks In Space

❑ Computerized Multimedia with live narration that shifts the audience from the measurable Earth to the immense and unimaginable vastness of the known Universe. A hierarchy description of how we measure farthest distances in the cosmos, and essentially, furthest in time.

Counting Those Eons

❑ Computerized Multimedia with live narration that shifts the audience from the most commonly used calender system to reckon time, to a calender of Astrophysics, to a understanding of the complex nature of time ticking beyond our common sense.

Happenings In The Sky

❑ Computerized Multimedia with live narration that shifts the audience from the mundane and casual to the most striking, unusual phenomena that greets us in the sky making it a beautiful and educational canopy at once. Also, will explain several optical illusions.
